MULTUM IN PARVO.

The following twelve paragraphs from an old horticultural publication, are worthy of a place amongst the most valued rules that should govern a well regulated home:

FRUIT TREES.

1. When fruit trees occupy the ground, nothing else should—except very short grass.

2. Fruitfulness and growth of the tree cannot be expected the same year.

3. There is no plum that the curculio will not take, though any kind may sometimes escape for one year in one place.

4. Peach borers will not do much damage when still hay is heaped up round the tree a foot high.

5. Pear blight still puzzles the greatest men. The best remedy known is to plant two for every one that dies.

6. If you don't know how to prune, don't hire a man from the other side of the sea, who knows less than you do.

7. Don't cut off a big lower limb unless you are a reuter and don't care what becomes of it when your time is out.

8. A tree with the limbs coming out near the ground is worth two trees trimmed up five feet, and is worth four trees trimmed up ten feet, and so on until they are not worth anything.

9. Trim down, not up.

10. Shorten in, not lengthen up.

11. If you had your arm cut off, you would feel it at your heart—a tree will not feel, but rot to the heart.

12. When anybody tells you of a gardener that understands all about horticulture and agriculture, and that can be hired, don't believe a word of it, for there are no such to be hired. Such a man can make more than you can afford to give him, and if he has sense enough to understand the business, he will also have enough to know this.

SIMPLE CURE FOR HEADACHE.

The Omaha Herald says: "If the saying is true that 'he who causes two blades of grass to grow where only one grew before is a public benefactor,' how much more is he who discovers a remedy for one of the most distressing diseases that a poor human is heir to? Having been afflicted many years with neuralgia headache, and after trying all the remedies I could hear of without any benefit, I had given up all hopes of cure and having an elder brother due of the disease, and told by the doctors there was no cure for it, I happily thought of salt, and in a short time I was delighted to see it had the best results. It is now about two months since I tried the experiment, and I have not been troubled with it since. Now I want to let 'the whole world and the rest of mankind' know the remedy; and it is so simple any one can use it. Take a pinch of salt and sniff it up until you can spit it out of your mouth. In changeable weather, or if you feel any return of it repeat the remedy."

A BOY KICKED TO DEATH FOR

THROWING A SNOWBALL.—A masquerade party which was given at Wolf's Hall, in Rome, N. Y., had a masked parade through the principal streets of the city. It was something unusual for the little folks to see so many curious men on horseback, and some of the more rude made snowballs and threw them as the procession passed by. The masqueraders were provoked at this treatment, and several times some one alighted from his horse and boxed the ears of the unruly lads. Jacob Bernhardt had been struck by a snowball; he became enraged, leaped from the sleigh in which he was riding, met Charles Reynolds, whose back was then turned, and struck him on the side of the head, felling him to the ground. While the boy was lying on the ground Bernhardt kicked him several times in the sides of the stomach, bursting several of the intestines, and leaving him on the ground where he fell, returned to the procession. The little fellow, completely bent over with pain, dragged himself to a shed, where he was found. He was taken into a house and cared for. A crowd gathered around him, all saying, "Bernhardt kicked him," "I saw Bernhardt kick him," &c. &c. He was taken to his house shortly after, where he died last Friday. Bernhardt was immediately arrested.

MAKE A NOTE OF THIS.—If any one

speaks ill of thee," says Epictetus, "consider whether he bath truth on his side, and if so, reform thyself, that his censures may not affect thee."

When Alexander was told that the very boys laughed at his singing, said—

"Ah, then I must learn to sing better."

Plato being told that he had many enemies who spoke ill of him, said—

"It is no matter; I shall live so that none will believe them."

Hearing at another time that an intimate friend of his had spoken detracting of him, he said—

"I am sure he would not do it if he had not some reason for it."

This is the surest as well as the noblest way of drawing the sting out of a reproach, and the true method of preparing a man for the great and only relief against the pains of calumny.

The fat men lately had a ball at Brigantoon, New York. No man was admitted who weighed less than two hundred pounds.

ANDREW JACKSON AND HIS SECRETARY.

When Gen. Jackson used to write his broadsides editorials for The Globe, Amos Kendall was his chief scribe and amanuensis.

The General was a better thinker than his scribe, his scribe a better writer than he. He would lie down and smoke and dictate his ideas as well as he could express them, and Amos Kendall would write a paragraph and read it. That was not the thing; many times the scribe would write and rewrite again and again, and fail to "fetch a compass" of the meaning. At last, by alteration and correction, getting nearer and nearer to it, he would see it, and be himself astonished at its masterly power.

Gen. Jackson needed such an amanuensis—intelligent, learned, industrious—as Mr. Kendall was. He could think, but could not write; he knew what to write, but he was no surgeon, skilled in the instrument of dissection. Kendall was. But how came Amos Kendall there, in Gen. Jackson's sanctum, where his wife's picture hung? She had been most maligned by Amos Kendall, the editor of Clay's leading journal in Kentucky during the canvass. Kendall had called her "Aunt Rachel with the corn-cob pipe," and had exaggerated Robard's wrongs and Rachel's failings in every term of reproach and ridicule. There was the chief enemy who had maligned her, there hung the picture of the wounded saint, and there was the husband avenger who volunteered a vow at her grave! This was a mighty struggle! Not so, however, to those who knew Gen. Jackson well. No man was cooler in his calculations than he was. He would sometimes seem to fight most rashly, but no one ever knew him to fight at all unless there was a stake up worth fighting for. Kendall had been a poor Yankee school master, and was a protégé of Mr. Clay. He had been but a hireling, and was but a pen for the political malice of Mr. Clay's party. What had he (President Jackson) to gain by fighting the pen, the mere amanuensis, when his aim was to slay the Promoter of all his wrongs? Kendall, for cause, left the fallen house of Clay, and fled to the rock of power and strength. He knew much, could reveal much, could deliver up all the enemy's armor. He was indefatigable, unscrupulous and able. He was the very weapon for a pugnacious patron to use, and could sure strike the arch enemy—he had been the arch enemy's own. Gen. Jackson then could throw away prejudice, passion, vengeance, itself, and vows, and coolly take Amos to that chamber, in presence of that picture, though he had applied the "scavenger's daughter" of torture to "Aunt Rachel!" Amos Kendall was his man, and he could and did use him with tremendous effect to destroy his first patron, Mr. Clay.

HENRY A. WISE.

SUICIDE OF A BOY—A Hard Hearted

Parent.—Some new facts were yesterday developed in the case of John H. Lyon, a boy eighteen years of age, who committed suicide on Friday evening last, as already reported, by taking Paris green. Up to four weeks ago he lived with his parents, at 322 east 44th street, at which time he happened to come into possession of $150 belonging to his father, which he appropriated, and fearing the consequences fled from his home and took refuge with friends on Staten Island. Later he visited New York, and found a boarding house on 6th avenue, near 34th street, which he occupied until Friday last. On that day he wrote to his father requesting an interview, but the parent refused to see him, and he became desperate. He took a quantity of Paris green, procured from a paint store, and feeling the baneful effects, hastened to the house of his uncle, John H. Lyon, 244 East sixty-eighth street, but on the way fell down exhausted. He was picked up by a policeman and taken to the station house, where he represented that he had come from Texas, but subsequently told the residence of his uncle and sent for him. He was removed from the prison cell and died at Bellevue Hospital.—N. Y. Sun.

DEATH FROM SWALLOWING AN OYSTER.

—The Stanton Spectator gives the following account of the death of Mr. Fred. Scheffer, who has been reported as dying from the effects of swallowing an oyster shell:

Mr. Fred. Scheffer, proprietor of the "Virginia Hotel" of this place, died about 9 o'clock yesterday morning after a brief illness. When a boy, his throat was injured by having swallowed agua fortis, in consequence of which it was subject to strictures. On Saturday evening last, while eating oysters, one of them lodged in his esophagus or swallow, about 6 or 8 inches from the stomach, which caused much pain, which had to be forced into the stomach, by mechanical means. It is supposed that a piece of shell was attached to the oyster. Whilst this was the exciting cause, it is supposed by his physicians that the immediate cause of his death was cerebral or brain affection.

In this unexpected death, this community loses an energetic and enterprising citizen, and his family an affectionate and kind husband and father. His remains have been taken to Woodstock, Shenandoah county, for interment.

Danville has Roller Skating.

FROZEN TO DEATH.

A STORY OF NEGLECT AND BRUTALITY.

The Memphis Appeal of Monday tells the following story of neglect and brutality:

A person who farms for a living, some distance from the city, rode in a spring wagon into town yesterday, bringing with him a little son. After figuring around for an hour, doing worldly business, he pulled up in front of a grocery in the suburbs, and went in to refresh and comfort himself, leaving the boy to take care of the horses. The man met some companions in doors, with whom he set about becoming convivial, as is the custom of those who congregate in suburban groceries. Time sped on, and the boy in the wagon became numbed with the cold and fell into a stupor. The lines dropped from his fingers, and the horses walked off. When it was time to disperse from the grocery the excellent father and feeling parent could find neither wagon nor boy. He spent the whole evening looking for them in the city, and was going home in a half-crazed state when he met his trusty colored man riding in for a doctor, saying the boy "Tommy was frozen to death." The horses had walked home, and the stiff child was found still sitting in his seat.

A BOY'S FAITH.

One of the most beautiful illustrations of believing prayer which I have ever known was furnished lately by a little boy some four years old. His grand-parents were talking about the draught.

"Yes," said the grandmother, "my flowers will be all burnt up, and we shall have no strawberries."

Little Bessy listened with deep interest, but said nothing. A few minutes afterward he was seen kneeling in one corner of the room, with his hands to his face, and was overheard praying thus: "O Lord! send down rain, so that grandma's flowers won't be burnt up, and so we shall have plenty of strawberries."

He then arose and came to his grandmother, saying: "Your flowers won't burn up, grandma. We are going to have some rain."

How do you know?

"Oh! said little Bessy, 'I have been praying for it, and it will come.' He seemed to have no doubt of it.

The morning the first thing the little fellow did, when he came down stairs, was to go to the back door and open to see if it rained. According to his prediction, the rain was falling upon thirsty flowers and the perishing berries. As soon as he saw it, he joyously shouted: "It's come, it's come, I knew it would! I prayed for it."

A SIX-YEAR-OLD PLAINTIFF.

Early in January last little Freddy Bowler of Eldridge street, near Grand, went into the store of a baker named Gesler with a comrade, whose mother had sent him with some pies to get baked. The pies having been consigned to the man in charge the children started for home. Before they reached the door Freddy stumbled over a piece of wood, and was at once pounced on by Gesler's dog and severely bitten in the leg. The little fellow was carried home, and for more than a week was in the hands of doctors, barbers, and apothecaries, for whose services Freddy's father had to pay handsomely. Ultimately the boy recovered, and his father sent the baker a bill for damages. The sum claimed was thirty dollars, which Gesler declined to pay. He was forthwith summoned to the Fourth District Court. The trial came off yesterday, and defendant's counsel attempted to prove that Freddy was in the act of stealing sugar from a barrel when the dog bit him. His witness, however, failed to establish the charge. In order to refute it, Freddy's lawyer proposed that his juvenile client should be heard. Freddy, who is a young gentleman about two feet high and six years of age, was placed standing on the chair, and warned by the Judge of the awful consequences of telling lies while acting as a witness, he was then allowed to relate his experiences in his own way. This he did in so simple and straightforward a manner that he won the sympathies of the court and obtained a decree for the full amount of the claim and costs.—N. Y. Sun.

THE TOBACCO TAX.—The Committee

of Ways and Means of the U. S. House of Representatives has settled the question of modifying the internal tax on tobacco by making a small concession to the manufacturers of plug tobacco. Well, even this is more than we object subjects of the Yankee had reason to expect. We are profoundly grateful to Mr. Stowell of Massachusetts and other self-sacrificing Yankees for procuring this small boon. They are a noble set of statesmen, so they are.

The question was settled by the committee by retaining the tax on smoking tobacco and changing that on plug tobacco from thirty-two to twenty-four cents a pound.—The appeal of the tobacco interest, especially that from Virginia for a consolidated or uniform tax of sixteen cents a pound, or even twenty cents, was not responded to.

FIFTY-TWO YEARS OLD.

On last Tuesday, the twentieth of February, the HILLSBORO RECORDER was fifty-two years old. In all this time it has never changed hands but one time and has never been suspended.

The venerable and lamented DENNIS HARTT, its founder, will never be forgotten so long as the name of this paper be remembered. And it is as much to offer this tribute to his revered memory that we pen this notice. For truly was he a good man whose virtues attracted imitation because of men's ready love for their Master, and whose pattern was admired and esteemed among all his fellows. The writer bows before the memory of his hoary head.

Thanks to our readers for their generous support. Thanks to a few friends—we wear them yet—who met us in the Acher and helped us to more cheering sights than the rattle of dead men's bones and the stripped wastes of poor rich folks' possessions. It is not time yet to go more. It was a boon we dare not crave to edit this paper fifty-two years longer. One of us already the oldest Editor in the State, and the writer, himself, by no means possessing the tenacity of a nine lived cat. However as long as the Gods will, we hope to see the Sun shine and hear the Partridge whistle in the good old county of Orange.

NODEMAGOGUE FOR GOVERNOR

It seems to be a popular idea that the best man for Governor is the man who can wheedle and whine the people out of the most votes. This may do for a Head man at a cornshucking or the chief manager of a big Stag dance, but we want no scrub of this sort for Governor. There are a plenty of this ilk in office now. And the people are so much their superiors that the very offices are partaking of the buffoonery and insignificance of the men that hold them. No, we want a man for Governor who can look Governor, speak Governor, act Governor, and be Governor. Bring out a man of this kind and let the scrubs do the demagoguing and electioneering. We will support no man whose example we do not admire and esteem and feel a desire to imitate.

THAT CONVENTION.

When the Convention does come off in Greensboro, let it be short, quick, and full of business—not talk. Let there be no splits over the East and West. What we want is the man, and a fig! for where he comes from. And let him not be canvassed into nomination by a few notorious partisans. That would lame him from the word, go. But let the working people have a word about it, the hard fisted people who pay the taxes, have a voice in the matter. And bring out a man who fears God, is liberal and just to all men, white and black, and has been intelligent enough to keep his hands clear of the noisome puddle of political personality in which the public men of North Carolina have been bathing themselves for the last several years. Then canvas for him. And the people will elect such a man.

RICHMOND.

We take from Whig, Dispatch and Enquirer:

The first shad of the season have appeared in the market at $1.50 per pair.

The Exchange Hotel is to be enlarged so that there will be upwards of sixty additional rooms, besides the construction of a new and grand stair case in the rear of the building for the accommodation of guests and to guard against danger from the fire.

Mr. Alfred Guerry, the South Carolina artist, who has been in this city for some weeks, has nearly completed the picture of Lee, which he is commissioned to paint for the town of Greenville, in his State.

George Alfred Townsend, correspondent of the New York Herald, passed through this city on Friday last, enroute to North Carolina to interview Lowry, the outlaw. He was provided with a telescope and hearing trumpet, and will hold his interview at 'long range.' If George gets within five miles of Lowry his inspiration will be so strong, and his abilities are so great, that he will be able to fill one side of the American Thunderer.

At nine o'clock A. M. on Saturday last, a large collection of apparatus, seized by the police in their raids on the 'faro banks' some time ago, was publicly burnt in front of the City Hall. The property destroyed consisted of roulette tables, sweat-clothes, dealing-boxes and two bushels of ivory checks, in all of the value of $8,000. One gaming table of those destroyed cost $3,600 and another $1,000. The destruction was made by order of Judge Guignon, of the Hastings court, according to a law in such cases made and provided.

NORFOLK.

We take from the Journal and Virginian:

Frank Mercer, a negro boy, charged with misbehaving in church, was fined $5.

Considering the season our markets in Portsmouth were very good on Saturday. There was on hand an abundance of everything that can be had at this time of the year. Turkeys sold for from $1.25 to $2 each, chickens from 60 cents to $1 a pair ducks, ditto.

White shad were sold in the market yesterday at $1.50 a pair. These fish came from North Carolina.

An unmailable letter in the Norfolk Office for Mrs. Mary Gordon, Salisbury, N. C.; no stamp.

BALTIMORE.

We take from the Market Journal:

The cultivation of hops has proved to be very profitable. The demand is constantly increasing and calls for more attention. The cultivation and all other expenses, will not exceed 11 to 15 cents per pound delivered in market. The roots can be purchased at a cost of from three to five dollars per bushel, and three bushels will plant an acre. The average yield per acre is from 1500 to 2000 lbs., and the net profits per acre may safely be reckoned at $800.

The Western sections of North Carolina and Virginia are naturally adapted to the Hop culture, since they are indigenous to this soil, and in many of these localities grow wild and attain to a great degree of perfection.

NEW YORK.

We take from Daily Herald and Sun: Gen. T. L. Clingman, of North Carolina, is at the St. Nicholas Hotel. General Clingman was a member of the United States Senate previous to the war, but that fact is probably less well remembered than his encounter in Raleigh, about a year ago, with Josiah Turner, editor of one of the papers of that city, in which, although the assailant, he was not eminently successful.

This is a Personal in the Herald: CALICO HOP OF B. H. P. CLUB.—Dark-Eyed Lady, black, white dress, in corner; light mustache other end of table; salute with glass wine and recognition at table and on floor; met in gallery (white cloud) and followed to carriage. Please address Piazza, Herald office.

At the close of Mr. Beecher's remarks at the prayer meeting last evening, a member arose and said:

'We pray for the poor man that he may be enabled to withstand the cares and troubles of this world, but we do not pray for the prosperous man. He more than any one else needs our prayers. Because he has a sufficiency of this world's goods, we neglect him. Let us pray for the prosperous man.'

Mr. Beecher—I agree with you. I shall write a sermon upon prosperity.

A Voice—I should like to hear it.

Mr. Beecher—You shall if you are at church.

GOLDSBORO.

We take from the Messenger:

The Gregory Hotel site, (half acre lot) in this place, was sold at public sale on Saturday last. Mr. W. W. Freeman became the purchaser for the 'mug little sum' of $5,202.

The dead body of George Boyett, (col.), aged about 18 years, was found buried near the Atlantic Railroad, about one mile from Goldsboro, on yesterday. The boy had been missed from home ever since last Wednesday. This induced a number of colored men to search an old field where he was last seen at work, and there the body was discovered.

The post mortem examination showed that seventeen buck-shot had entered in the back of the boy's head. Strong circumstantial evidence before the jury led to the arrest of Stephen Barfield, the boy's step-father, who is now in jail.

RALEIGH.

We take from Banner of Temperance Era, and We Know:

Dr. W. J. Palmer, of Belleville, Canada, is expected to arrive in this city today.

The office formerly occupied by Hon. E. Graham Haywood as a law office, was sold at auction last week for thirteen hundred and fifty dollars.

The first fire of any magnitude that occurred in Raleigh, was in the year 1816. An interesting meeting is in progress at Dr. Pritchard's (Baptist) Church, in this city. Great interest is manifested, and much lasting good, we hope, will be the result.

We have been highly gratified at meeting in our city Messrs. Alexander Robertson and William Sutherland, of Belleville, Canada, who are on a tour through the South. If they are specimens of the people of Canada, and we are assured they are, the lot of Dr. Wiley J. Palmer has been cast among an excellent people.

Dr. W. J. PALMER.—This distinguished son of our State, who is now the Principal of the Deaf and Dumb Institution at Belleville, Province of Ontario, Canada, is on a visit to his relatives in this State, and is spending a few days with his numerous friends in this city.

GREENSBORO.

We take from the Patriot:

The young people have lately been dramatizing and the Editor thus mentions one of the young lady artists: Miss Lucy D. possesses fine talent, which she displayed to perfection on this evening as well as the previous evenings in which she took part. When they make their next cast of character we trust they will next cast Miss Lucy a part where her talents may have full scope.

Since the first of August the guests of Benbow's Hotel have disposed of 1,323 dozen of eggs; 3332 chickens, 1,960 lbs. of butter, not to talk of beef, mutton, pork, vegetables, &c., which went to make up the bill of fare.

There were over 500 tobacco wagons in Danville on last Saturday. We publish this for the benefit of our merchants.

CHARLOTTE.

We take from the Democrat: Recipe for Making Corned Beef.—Atter cutting the beef, salt four or five days to draw out the blood; then take brown sugar, bay salt and common salt, each 5 pounds; salt petre 1 pound; pimento, 5 ounces; black pepper, 3 ounces; nutmegs, 1 ounce and five gallons of boiling water. This not only imparts a fine red color to the meat, but also gives it a most delicious flavor. The meat should be entirely covered and weighted under the pickle. If it should mould (as it will do) in the Spring, the pickle should be poured off and boiled, skimmed and when cold poured back over the meat as at first, and it will keep good for years. Boil tender and eat cold.

WM. D. ALEXANDER.

COTTON.—During the past week 413 bales were sold without material change in prices from those ruling at the close of the week previous. We now quote low middling at 21 cts. and middling 21½ to 21¾ cts. Our market is dull, in sympathy with declining rates at New York and Liverpool, consequent upon more liberal arrivals than dealers were led to expect. Corn we quote at 85 to 87½ cents from wagons.

WILMINGTON.

We take from the Journal and Star. The various butchers of the city slaughtered 21 beeves, 107 hogs and 4 sheep during the week ending yesterday.

St. James' Church has been entirely completed, in the interior, and yesterday all the scaffolding was removed. It looks, now, like a new church.

NEWBERN.

We take from the Republican:

The police Court room has not been so full of shoe leather as usual.

We are glad to know great exertions are being made in this city to encourage temperance.

Born.—In this city, Thursday, February 22nd, a daughter to Mr. and Mrs. Wm. S. Phillips.

GILLIAM'S Tobacco Fertilizer, MANUFACTURED BY THE Southern Fertilizing Co., RICHMOND, VA.

WM GILLIAM, Pres. & Chemist, (Formerly Prof. of Chemistry, &c., Va. Military Institute.)

THIS STANDARD FERTILIZER has received, after five years trial, the unqualified commendation of the best planters in Virginia and N. Carolina, both as to its action on Plant Beds and the General Crop. As an application for both bright and dark tobacco, our patrons claim it has no rival, not excepting Peruvian Guano.
